

HOMWORK

Homework is an important segment of the learning process. It needs to reflect a positive approach to learning. Homework should be associated with academic growth and not used as a suspendable offense.

Homework is an extension of classroom activities. Therefore, assignments should be moderate so that they can be completed in a reasonable amount of time. Consideration should be given to the number of different subject areas for which the student is responsible. It is the students' responsibility to complete homework assignments and the parents' responsibility to see that the student completes all homework assignments. Failure to do so may affect the students' progress as well as his/her grade. Homework assignments will be monitored by the teacher.

Because of the diversity of the grade structure within the school system, each school should establish homework guidelines.
